UNIT 1 Development of Music in India

Introduction

- India has a rich heritage of performing arts including Music, Dance, Theatre and Puppetry. Unlike Visual Arts whose specimens can be found, its difficult to trace history of performing arts especially music since it is auditory in nature.
- Despite of its limitations, there has been a rich heritage of music right from the ancient times to the modern period which took a sharp turn in Medieval period due to the fusion of Arabic and Persian elements in the traditional music of India.
- Perhaps the chanting of Vedic Mantras in the form of Sangama was the first form of musical development. Thereafter, even the narration of epics developed in a type of music called the Jatigan.
- As per the Indian mythology, it was Narad Muni who introduced music on earth. Besides it, Sama Veda mentions the all the seven notes of the raga (These Sa, Re, Ga, Ma, Pa, Dha, Ni).

Karaharapriya, is regarded as the first literary evidence of any kind of music.

- Perhaps, the chanting of vedas; Samveda was the first development of musical tradition.

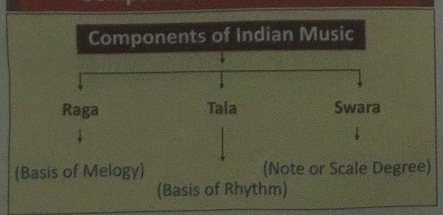
Components of Indian Music



Raga

- It comes from the Sanskrit word Ranj which can be translated as something which makes one feel delighted.
- As per the number of notes present in a Raga, they are divided into three different Jaatis or categories.

- There are 6 main Raagas of Hindustani Classical music, each Raag is sung according to a particular time, season and emotion.

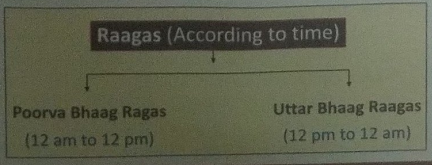
Raga	Time	Season	Mood
Bhairav	Morning	Autumn	Peace
Hindol	Dawn	Spring	Evokes sweetness of a young couple
Deepak	Night	Summer	Compassion
Megh	Mid-day/ Afternoon	Rainy	Courage
Shri	Evening	Winter	Gladness
Malkauns	Midnight	Winter	Vir or Brave

Terms associated with Ragas

Rasa

- The Rasas are emotions which are evoked through the playing of music through instruments. It is the primary motive of playing Raagas that is to bring emotional response from the audience.



The Naurasas or Nine emotions

Type of Rasa	Mood it Evokes
• Shringara	Love
• Hasya	Humour/Laughter
• Karuna	Pathos
• Raudra	Anger/Rage
• Bhayaanaka	Fear
• Veera	Courage
• Adbhuta	Wonder
• Vibhatsa	Disgust
• Shant	Peace or Tranquility

Thaat

- The Raagas are basically classified into Thaats. At present, there are 10 Thaats in the Hindustani Classical Music.
- The Ten Thaats are: Bilawal, Khamaj, Kafi, Asawan, Bhairavi, Bhairav, Marwa, Kalyan, Todi and Poorvi.

Tala

- The grouping of beats which is sung in a rhythmic way is known as Tala. The beats can range from as few as 3 to as much as 108 beats.
- The tempo or Laya keeps the playing of Tala as uniform within a particular time span. The mostly played Talas are: dadra, rupak, jhaptal, Teen-tal, Adha-chautal.
- In case of Carnatic Music, the Talas are divided in three parts: Laghu, Dhrutam and Anu Dhrutam.

Swara

- The word Swara defines the notes used in a composition. Bharat Muni has divided the Swaras in 22 notes scale. At present, there are 7 notes or Swaras in the Hindustani Classical Music.

Name of the pitch	Abbreviation
• Shadjam	Sa
• Risabham	re
• Gandharvam	Ga
• Madhyamam	Ma
• Panchamam	Pa
• Dhaivatam	Dha
• Nishadam	Ni

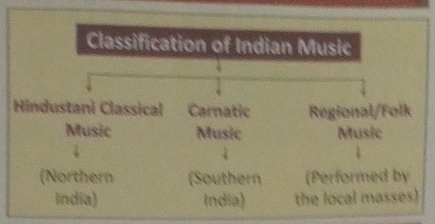
Classification of Indian Classical Music

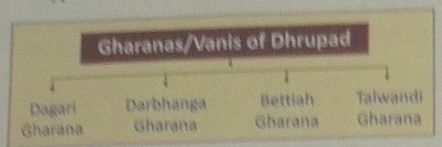


Hindustani Classical Music

- The Hindustani as well Carnatic Music traces their linkages in ancient India particularly, Natyasashtra of Bharat Muni. However, it was Hindustani Classical music which altered its form and structure greatly with the fusion of Arabic and Persian elements in the 14th century with a wider range of improvisation.
- At present, there are 10 main styles of singing in the Hindustani Classical Music which are mentioned below:

Dhrupad

- It is the oldest style of Hindustani Music which became popular in 13th century and reached its zenith during the times of Akbar.
- The dhrupad vocalists such as Gopal Das, Swami Haridas and Tansen adorned the court of Akbar. Besides it, Raja Man Singh of Gwalior also patronised singers who mastered this type of singing.
- It is usually sung by two male vocalists which is accompanied by instruments such as been, pakhawaj and tanpura. The following four Vanis/Banis or Gharanas perform four different types of dhrupad:



Khayal

- The word Khayal means imagination or an idea in the Persian language. It was Amir Khusrau who popularized Khayal type of singing in the 13th century. Meanwhile, Sultan Mohammad Sharkhi of 15th century encouraged this form of singing.

Thumri

- It is another form of Hindustani Classical music which is devotional or romantic in nature. It is comprised of mixed ragas which are usually sung in Hindi, Braj or Awadhi dialect usually by female vocalists. Ex : Begum Akhtar, Girija Devi, Sharda Sinha etc.

- Beghum Akhtar is one of the renowned singers of Thumri style of singing. Besides it, Banaras and Lucknow Gharana are famous for this genre of singing.
- Dr Sharda Sinha affectionately known as Bihar Kokila and Swar Kokila was posthumously accorded Padma Vibhushan 2025 for her contributions in folk music - Khayal, Thumri, and Dadra.

Tappa

- Tappa is a form of singing which is sung in quick and fast rhythmic ways. It traces its origin in the North western parts of India. It attained popularity due to the patronage of Tappa singers by the Mughal emperor Muhammad Shah Rangeela (1719-1748 CE).
- Furthermore, it became famous among the elite classes including the zamindars.

The famous Tappa singers are: Pandit Laxman Rao (Gwalior), Shanno Khurana and Mian Sodi.

Tarana

- It is sung in fast rhythmic tempo which can be improvised by the singer in the form of adding and repeating melodies.

The most famous singer of Tarana style is Pandit Ratan Mohan Sharma aka Tarana ka Badshah.

Dhamar- Hori Style

- It is usually sung on the occasion of Holi festival. It is similar to dhrupad style of singing except a few variations. It is consisted of erotic lyrics and these are mostly related to Lord Krishna.

Ghazal

- Ghazal is the one of most popular form of Hindustani classical music which consists of rhythmic couplets whose number do not exceed 12 couplets.
- It was mostly influenced by Sufi mystics but popularised by Amir Khusrau in 13th century. It deals with emotional feelings such as love and pain expressed through beautiful words.

Jagjeet Singh and Ghulam Ali are famous Ghazal singers.

Carnatic Music

- Unlike Hindustani Music which greatly altered during Medieval Period, the Carnatic music did not go under much modifications from ancient to present times.
- The Tamil text (Sangam Age) Silappadikaram contains an elaborate description of music of that period. Besides it, Tolkappiyam, Kalladam and contribution of Shaivite and Vaishnavite saints (7th-8th century AD) serve as the source of studying Carnatic music.
- Purandar Das is known as the Father of Carnatic Music.

Krishnadeva Raya, patronised the Carnatic Music in the South.

- Venkatamakhi introduced 72 Melakartas (sytematic formula of singing) in his work Chaturbandi Prakasika in 17th century.
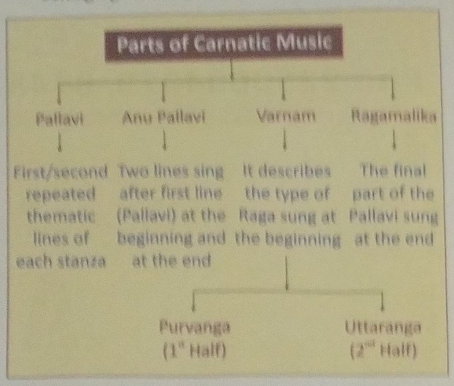
- The Carnatic Musical Trinity : Tyagaraja, Muthuswami Dikshitar and Syama took the Carnatic music to the next level. Subbarama Dikshitar wrote Sangeeta Sampradaya Pradarsini in 1904 which gives information about Carnatic music, composers and musicians.
- The Carnatic music is based on a highly evolved music called Kriti. The music is accompanied by the playing of Mridangam (drum)
- The part of music which has the beats of Mridangam is called Thanam and which do not have is called Ragam.
- The following are the main parts of composition belonging to the Carnatic Music:



Folk Music of India

- Unlike classical music which is patronised by the imperial courts and influential classes, the Folk Music was a leisure-time activity performed by the common masses.
- There is much diversity in the regional music which do not follow any strict rule or form. Most of the music is dance-oriented often accompanied by simple instruments such as beating of drums which differs from place to place.

Ellora Cave Paintings

- The 5 cave Paintings of Ellora (Aurangabad, Maharashtra) also represents all the major three religions Hindu, Buddhism and Jainism.
- These Mural Paintings are executed on the walls of Kailash Temple.
- These paintings belong to two distinct phases : First Phase- During the formation of these caves and the Second Phase belonged to several centuries later.
  - Earlier Paintings: Celestial Bird Garuda creating Vishnu and his consort Lakshmi through clouds
  - Later Paintings: Procession carrying out by the devotees of Shiva.

Bagh Cave Paintings

- Despite of depicting religious themes, the Bagh Caves (Dhar, Madhya Pradesh) are considered secular because they show themes of the contenporary life style of people.

- Its design and way of execution is quite similar with that of the paintings of Ajanta Caves with a few differences such as they have comparatively less free space among the subjects and objects and outlines are sharper and stronger than Ajanta paintings.
- The Rang Mahal (cave no. 4) depicts the Buddhist Jatak tales related to life of Buddha (just as Ajanta Paintings) as mural paintings on the walls of Bagh Caves.

Armamalai Cave Paintings

- The Armamalai Cave Paintings are located in Vellor district of Tamil Nadu.
- They are based on the Jain theme of Astathik Palakas (deities of eight corner) beautifully and finely painted on the walls and roof of the caves.
- These caves began to serve as the rest houses of Jain monks after they were converted into Jain temples (8th century) from natural caves.

Sittanavasal Cave Paintings

- The Sittanavasal caves (abode of great saints) are located in Pudukottai district of Tamil Nadu. The Fresco paintings are executed on the walls, ceilings and pillars of Jain temples in these rock cut caves.
- The colours were prepared with vegetable and mineral dyes. The common colours being yellow, green, orange, blue, white and black.
- There is a dispute regarding the actual period of execution of these paintings. However, the scholars largely attribute them to the Pandya rule in the 9th century. Central theme - Pond with water.

Ravan Chhaya Fresco Paintings

- These fresco paintings (on wet lime plaster) are located in Keonjhar district of Odisha.
- The most famous painting of these rock shelters is the one depicting a scene of a royal procession belonging to the 7th century AD.
- The paintings look like the half-opened umbrella in shape.

Lepakshi Temple Paintings

- The mural paintings are executed an the walls of the Lepakshi Temple, located in the Anantpur district of Andhra Pradesh.
- One notable feature of these mural paintings is that, despite being done on the temple walls, these paintings are remarkably secular in nature, following no particular religious theme.
- The subjects of the paintings are outlined with black colour however, there is a complete absence of natural colours like red, green and blue.

Miniature Paintings

- India has a long tradition of the miniature paintings which are small and detailed illustrations done on various objects ranging from palm leaves to textiles.
- The word miniature is a misnomer to describe miniature paintings because it has been derived from the Latin word minium which actually means red lead paint used in European paintings in the the Renaissance period.
- The art of miniature painting was well developed since the early medieval times. A number of schools patronising miniature paintings developed in different parts of India with variations. The prominent examples are Mughal School, Deccani school , Rajasthani school and the Pahari School of miniature paintings.

Features of Miniature Paintings

- The miniature paintings are generally not more than 25 inch in size.
- The subject of the painting doesn't occupy more than 1/6th of the total space of the painting.
- Use of different colours to depict different subjects such as divine figures are shown in blue colour (Lord Krishna. The colours brown (Rajasthani school) and light skin colour (Mughal school) are used to show human figures.
- The human figures have bulging eyes, pointed nose and slim waist. Men are shown wearing traditional clothes.
- The women figures have thick black eyes and thick black hair.

Pala School of Paintings (750-1150 AD)

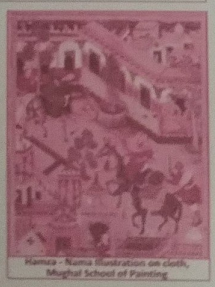
- The Palas of eastern India patronised this school of miniature paintings. The themes of these paintings are related to Buddhism generally executed on Manuscripts and palm, banana and coconut leaves.
- The paintings depict lonely figures unlike the groups which is generally a feature of miniature paintings.

A fine example of the typical Buddhist palm-leaf manuscript illustrated in the Pala style exists in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, England. It is a manuscript of the Astasahasrika Prajnaparamita, or the Perfection of Wisdom written in eight thousand lines.

- It was executed at the monastery of Nalanda in the fifteenth year of the reign of the Pala King, Ramapala, in the last quarter of the eleventh century.
- The figures are natural in depictions and generally have subdued background and tones. The surviving manuscripts generally belong to Vajrayana school of Buddhism.

Mughal Paintings (16th-18th century)

- The Mughal miniature Paintings have a unique blend of regional and Persian elements which are strictly secular in nature.
- The paintings generally have bright colours and shows diverse themes such as the courtly activities, hunting scenes, historical events and divinity of the ruler.
- The painters deployed the technique of fore sightening which means that objects are drawn in a manner that they look closer and smaller than they really are.



Hamza - Nama illustration on cloth, Mughal School of Painting

- The Mughal rulers such as Babur, Humayun, Akbar, Jahangir and Shahajahan were great patrons of art and architecture.
- Despite of having very less time for rule, Babur was greatly interested in depicting natural scenery and landscapes. He patronised a Persian artist Bihzad who illustrated the family tree of the Mughals.
- During is exile in Persia, Humayun got in touch with two great painters Abdus Samad and Mir Saeed Ali and brought them back to India.
- Akbar was also a great patron of artistic activities. For the similar purpose, he even established various Karkhanas and commissioned various artists including painters to workin them.
- Many regional painters flocked to the court of Akbar introducing their own distinct style in the paintings.
- The use of 3 dimensional figures, calligraphy and depiction of courtly activities are some of the features of miniature painting executed during the times of Akbar.
- Some of the famous Indian painters in Akbar's court were Dasvanth, Naanha, Basawan, Manohar, Surdas, Shankar Goverdhan and Inayat.

Famous manuscripts in reign of Akbar Tutinama, Hamzanama, Gulistan.

- It was during the reign of Jahangir, the Mughal Paintings reached to it's greatest height. He himself was a great artist and believed in depicting natural elements such as birds, animals, flora and fauna in the paintings.
- He focused on bringing naturalism in the portrayal of subjects in the paintings. He patronised a great Painter named Ustad Mansoor to work in the Mughal workshops.

Common themes of miniature paintings: Zebra, Mughal Rulers, Turkey and Cock.

- The unique feature of paintings during Jahangir's times was the use of decorated margins around the paintings.
- Shahjahan also patronised painters in his court. However, the style of depicting naturalism took a back seat during the times of Shahjahan.
- He was rather keen on introducing artificial elements such as those used in the European paintings with bright colours.
- The sketch paintings were drawn by using pencil and charcoal was widely used. Shah Jahan encouraged the wide use of silver & gold in the paintings.

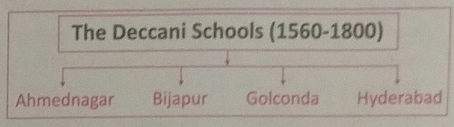
The Deccani Schools (1560-1800 A.D.)



- The Deccan school of art was patronised by the Deccan Sultans who fused northern and southern elements in the cultural spheres.
- Though the artistic style was less sophisticated than the Mughals but the paintings continued to develop and flourish independently during the 16th-19th centuries.

Ahmednagar School

- The earliest examples of the Ahmednagar painting are given in a set of poems written in praise of Hussain Nizam Shah I and his queen called Tarif-i-Hussain Shahi. It is preserved in the Bharat Itihas Samshodaka Mandala, Poona.
- One of the illustrations depicts the king sitting on the throne and attended by a number of women. The females appearing in the paintings belong to the northern tradition of Malwa.
- The Choli (bodice) and long pigtails, braides and ending with a tassels are the northern costume. But the long scarf passing round the body is in the southern fashion.
- The colours used in the paintings being rich and brilliant, are different from those used in the northern paintings. The Persian influence can be seen in the high horizon, gold sky and the landscape.
- Some other fine examples of the Ahmednagar painting are the Hindola Raga of about 1590 A.D. and portraits of Burhan Nizam Shah II and Malik Amber of about 1605 AD.

Bijapur School

The Prince of Bijapur, Deccani School of Paintings

- This school of painting was patronised by Ali Adil Shah I and his successor Ibrahim II.
- An encyclopaedia known as the Najum-al-ulum contains several miniature paintings in which the ladies depicted in the illustrations are tall and slender and are wearing the South Indian dress.
- One of the miniatures illustrated shows the Throne of Prosperity. There is influence of the Lepakshi mural painting on the female types. The rich colour scheme, the palm trees, animals and men and women all belong to the Deccani tradition.
- The usage of gold colour, flowering plants and arabesques technique on the top of the throne are derived from the Persian tradition.
- Ibrahim II (1580-1627 A.D.) was a musician and author of a book, the Naurasnama, also Patronised art and literature. It is believed that a number of the Ragamala paintings were commissioned in various museums and private collections.

Golconda School

- The earliest paintings identified as Golconda work are a group of five charming paintings (preserved in the British Museum, London) painted in the period of Muhammad Quli Qutb Shah.
- They depict the dancing girls entertaining the royal gathering.
- One of the miniatures illustrated shows the king in his court watching a dance performance. He wears the white traditional coat with embroidered vertical band, a typical costume associated with the Golconda court. Gold colour has been widely used in the objects of the painting. There is no influence of Mughals on these paintings.

Prominent examples of the Golconda painting are: Lady with the Myna bird (1605), an illustrated manuscript of a Sufi poem (preserved in the British Museum, London) and two portraits showing a poet in a garden and an elegantly dressed young man seated on a golden stool and reading a book (Museum of Fine Arts, Boston).

- Early Deccani painting absorbed influences of the northern tradition of the pre-Mughal painting at Malwa & of the southern tradition of the Vijayanagar murals in terms of female types & costumes.
- However, the influence of the Persian painting is observed in the treatment of the horizon gold sky and landscape.

Hyderabad School

- This school of paintings started with the foundation of the Asaf-Jahi dynasty by Nizam-ul-Mulk in 1724.
- There is a fusion of Mughal style besides having the distinctive features of the Deccani such as in the depiction of the ethnic types, costumes, jewellery, flora, fauna, landscape and colours.
- A miniature painting of a princess with her maids is a typical example of the Hyderabad school of painting. The princess is reclining on richly furnished terrace covered with a canopy.
- The common features in the Hyderabad school of painting are rich colours, the Deccani facial types and costumes can be seen in the miniature paintings.

The Rajasthani Schools

- The Rajasthani schools of paintings are purely regional in nature and are deeply rooted in the Indian traditional.
- Unlike the Mughal paintings which are largely secular, the regional schools mostly draw their inspiration from religious themes such as Epics and the depiction of Gods and Deities.
- After the disintegration of Mughal empire, the leading patrons of arts flocked to different regions including the courts of Rajput rulers which thus added fusion elements in the paintings of sub genres of Rajasthani paintings.

Rajasthani Schools of Paintings

- Mewar School
- Bundi School
- Amber-Jaipur School
- Bikaner School
- Kishangarh School
- Marwar School

Mewar School of Painting

Mewar School of Painting

- The Royal city of Udaipur with Ranthambhore and Chittor show the exuberance of Rajput lifestyle depicted in its art and architecture.
- The themes of the Mewar school of Painting are mainly based on the literary texts such as Ramayana and Bhagvata Purana.
- The Ragamala paintings drawn by the Painter Sahibdin is a distinctive feature of the Mewar paintings.
- Besides it, the other paintings show the courtly life of Mewar of the 17th and 18th century. The Tamasha Paintings depicts the details of the city life and courtly ceremonies.

Kishangarh School of Paintings

Bani Thani Painting, Kishangarh School

- The Kishangarh School of paintings draw its inspiration from the romance and love tales between Radha and Krishna.
- Besides it, the paintings also depict the romantic liaison between Sawant Singh and his beloved Bani Thani which makes it different from other schools of Rajput paintings.
- The women Bani Thani paintings look similar as Radha with thin lips, pointed chin and big eyes with a odhni (headglar) wrapped around her head.

Nihal Chand was a famous painter of this school of painting who mostly drew the legends of Sawant Singh.

Bundi School of Painting

- The city of Kota in Rajasthan was once a remarkable centre of art and housed many patrons of arts.
- The paintings of Bundi have a detailed description of local vegetation. The human figures have rounded face with pointed nose. The Paintings have been an imaginary interchange of colours in natural things. There sky colour is depicted in blue.

As the rulers of Bundi were followers of Krishna, most of the paintings are based on the themes of Lord Krishna.

Amber-Jaipur School of Painting

- The Amber-Jaipur style of paintings are Mughal in character and folk/regional in the spirit due to it's close relationship with the Mughal empire.
- The miniature paintings of Amber or Dhundar school can be found at Amer Palace and its walls.
- Raja Sawai Pratap Singh (18th century) patronised the Jaipur school of art. For this purpose, he even established a Suratkhana or department of painting for painters to illustrated miniatures.

Marwar School of Painting

- The Rathods (ruling over Jodhpur and Bikaner) and Bhatis of Jaisalmer patronised the Marwar school of painting.
- One of the earliest examples of Marwar paintings is a series of the Ragamala in the collection of Kumar Sangram Singh, painted by an artist named Virji at Pali in Marwar.

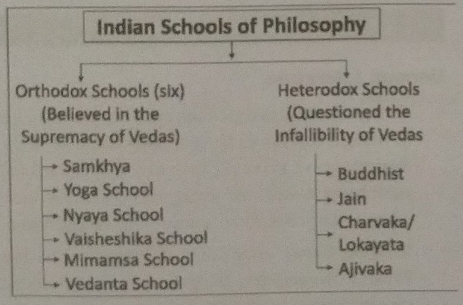
UNIT 5 Schools of Philosophy in India

Introduction

- The ancient Indian philosophies tried to explains the questions related to life and death of human beings.
- Almost all the schools of philosophy agreed that man should work towards the fulfillment of the four goals of life which are : Artha (Economic Wealth), Dharma (Rules regarding social order), Kama (Physical Pleasure or Love) and lastly Moksha (Salvation). The final goal of human life was considered to be the salvation from this constant cycle of birth and death.
- The Indian Schools of Philosophy are broadly divided into two categories:



- The other basic difference between the Orthodox and Heterodox Schools of Philosophies is that the former tries to address the metaphysical questions of life during and after death, the latter mostly attempted to solve the basic problems of human beings including materialistic concerns.

Orthodox Schools of Philosophy

Sankhya/Samkhya Philosophy

- The word Sankhya or Samkhya literally means Count.

Sankhya school was founded by Kapila Muni who is also credited to author the text Samkhya Sutra.

The Sankhya School underwent two important phases

Original Samkhya View	New Samkhya View
• This view is considered to be the early Samkhya philosophy and dates from 1st century AD.	• This view emerged when newer elements merged with the older Samkhya view during the 4th century AD.
• They believed that the presence of any divine agency was not necessary for the creation of the universe.	• They argued that along with the element of nature, Purusha or spirit was necessary for the creation of the universe.
• They propounded a rational and scientific view of creation of the universe.	• They propounded a spiritual view of the creation of the universe.

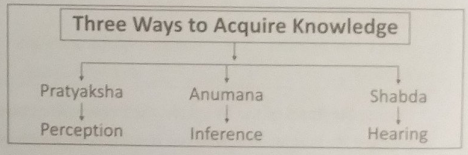
- The Sankhya school of philosophy believed in the idea of dualism or Dvaitavada which means that soul and matter are two different things. Besides it, this school argued that knowledge is the only way to achieve salvation and that can happen through three main ways, which are as follows:



- The Sankhya school is probably the most pragmatic philosophy among all the Orthodox schools of philosophy since it is based on scientific basis of any inquiry.
- Further, this school makes a distinction between Purusha (man: Unaltered but containing consciousness) and Prakriti (consisting of 3 attributes: thought, movement and transformation) to explain the differences between mankind and nature.

Yoga School

- The foundation of Yoga school is said to be laid down by Patanjali (2nd BC) who compiled the Yogasutra.
- The Yoga school believes that salvation can be achieved through meditation and Yoga asanas which would ultimately lead to the release of Purusha (man) from the Prakriti (nature).
- The Yoga postures are considered indispensable for controlling mind, body and sensory organs. The following ways are suggested to achieve the highest level of concentration:

Forms of Yoga	Meanings/Ways of achieving it
• Yama	Practicing self-control
• Niyama	Observation of the rules governing one's life
• Pratyahara	Choosing an object
• Dharna	Fixing the mind (over the chosen object)
• Dhyana	Concentrating on the (above-mentioned) chosen object
• Samadhi	It is the merging of the mind and the object that leads to the final dissolution of the self

Nyaya School

- Another Orthodox school of philosophy which relies on the scientific and logical way of thinking is Nyaya School of philosophy.
- The Nyaya School is said to be found by Gautam who is also considered as the author of Nyaya Sutra.
- This school argued that salvation can be achieved by acquiring the real/actual knowledge through the methods such as inference, hearing and analogy by systematic reasoning.

Vaisheshika School

- Maharishi Kanad is considered as the founder of Vaisheshika school of Philosophy.
- It argues that everything is made up of five elements: Pansh Natura, Air, Water, Earth and Sky collectively known as Dravya.
- This school was the earliest to explain the fundamental physics of particles by arguing that everything is made up of atoms and molecules viewing the universe through mechanical point of view.
- On the question of belief in God, the school believes in the existence of God who is responsible for deciding the merits and demerits of man who is accordingly send to hell or heaven.
- This school further believes in the theory of Karma and argues that men are rewarded or punished for their actions and finally lead to their salvation from the cycle of birth and death.

Mimamsa School

- Sage Jaimini had compiled the Sutras of the Mimamsa school somewhere around the 3rd century BC. There was further addition in this school by two major sages namely : Sabar Swami, Nad and Kumarila Bhatta.
- The word Mimamsa is concerned with the art of interpretation. It believes in the complete reliability on the Vedas as to lead meaningful life and to finally achieve salvation.
- This school believes that Vedas contain the eternal truth and possess complete knowledge of everything. Further, this school emphasised on the performance of Vedic rituals for achieving salvation with the assistance of the priests (Brahmanas).

Vedanta School

- The word Vedanta signifies the end of the Vedas (Veda+ant). This school explains the philosophies given in the Upanishads.

The text Brahmasutra (2nd BC) written by Badrayana is considered as the earliest embodiment of Vedanta philosophy.

- The Vedanta philosophy argues that Brahma (equal to consciousness of self or Atma) is the reality of life while the rest of the things are Maya or illusion.
- This philosophy was further refined and improvised by Shankaracharya (9th AD) who propounded Advaita Vedanta or absolute monism and Ramanuja (12th AD) who propounded Vishishtadvaita or qualified monism. The basic differences between both the philosophies are as follows:

Shankaracharya's Views	Ramanujan's
• He considers Brahma to be without any attributes.	He considers brahma to possess certain attributes.
• He considers Knowledge or jnana/gyan to be the main means of attaining salvation	He considers loving the faith and practicing devotion as the path to attain salvation

- This school further believes in the theories of Karma and Punarjanm (Rebirth). Thus, it propounded that man suffers in the present life due to their misdeeds in the previous birth.

Heterodox Schools of Philosophy

Buddhist Philosophy

- Gautama Buddha laid down some of the basic principles the lead to way of life free from repentance and suffering. These basic rules and principles came to be known as the Buddhist philosophy.
- The tenets of the Buddhist philosophy in the form of Pitakas were codified at the Buddhist Council held at Rajagriha by the disciples of Gautama Buddha.

Name of the Disciple	Buddhas' Pitakas written by him
• Upali	Vinaya Pitaka (Rules of order for Budhist monks)
• Ananda	Sutta Pitaka (Buddha's sermons and doctrines)
• Mahakashyap	Abhidhamma Pitaka (Buddhist philosophy)

- Gautam Buddha expanded argued that one should not blindly trust the Vedas thus, questioning their authority.
- He, further, emphasised that the following four Noble truths need to be realised in order to seek liberation while living:

Four Noble Truths of Life
• First - Dukkha	There is suffering in Life (Sickness, pain, death)
• Second - Samuday	Fundamental cause of all suffering is desire
• Third - Nirodha	Annihilation of desire can end this suffering
• Fourth - Marga	One can end the desire and achieve liberation (Nirvana) by following the Eightfold Path

- Buddha further prescribe the Eight-fold Path to achieve liberation or Nirvana and minimise the suffering in this life.
- The following actions constitute the Eight-fold Path of Buddhism:

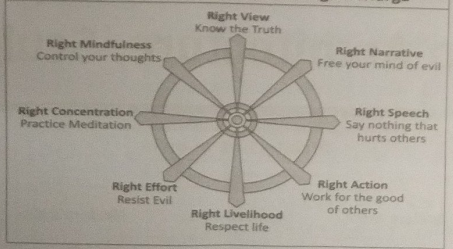
The Noble Eightfold Path/Ashtangika Marga



Jain Philosophy

- The Thirtankaras are believed to expound the Jain Philosophy, especially by Rishabhdeva (represented by a Bull), the first amongst the 24 Tirthankaras. He realised that Adinath is the source of all Jain Philosophy.
- Just like Buddhist Philosophy, Jain philosophy also questioned the authority of the Vedas as per the Jain philosophy. The Three ways to control one's mind are: Right Perception, Right Knowledge and Right Conduct.

The Tri-Ratna (Three Jewels) of Jain Philosophy

- Further, the Jaina philosophy is strictly adhered to the practice of Ahimsa even the unintentional killing of an organism is prohibited.
- The philosophy upholds that a man should practice Bramacharya (celibacy) in order to achieve salvation among other things.
- It argues that all the things in universe including natural and supernatural beings are made up of the following Nine fundamental elements or Nav-Tattvas:

The Jain Nav-Tattvas' (Nine Fundamental Elements of the Jain Philosophy)

- The Jaina Philosophy belives that any substance is made up of Ajiva (consisted of 5 Ashtikaya) and Jiva.

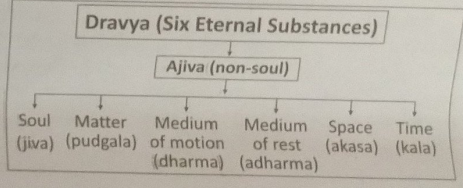
Dravya (Six Eternal Substances)



Charvaka / Lokayata Philosophy

- The Lokayata (derived from common people) finds its mention in the Vedas making it one of the oldest schools of philosophy.
- The foundation of the Charvaka school is supposed to be laid down by Brahaspati which is based on the idea of living a good life through materialistic means.

The Lokayata philosophy was popularized by Charvaka.

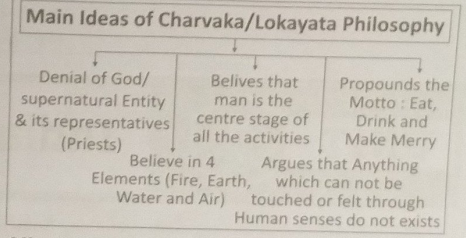
Main Ideas of Charvaka/Lokayata Philosophy



Ajivaka

- The School was founded by Maskari putra Gosala. They believe in Niyatvad (fate).

UNIT 6 Martial Arts in India

UNIT 7 Indian Architecture, Sculpture and Pottery

- The term architecture encompasses everything from a simple mud structure to colossal stone temples. Unlike other specimens of art forms which are vulnerable to decay over the period of time, the architectural structure remained in relatively well preserved state due to its ruggedness and physically strong nature.
- The architecture style of India underwent a number of changes over the period of time.
- While the sculptures are 3D piece of art which is generally made by using a single material. The pottery includes the pieces of recovered potsherds which are painted by using varied patterns and colours.

Architecture in Ancient India

- The architectural style of India during ancient period underwent through different phases, each time adding newer elements brought by different cultures.

Harappan Art

- The remains excavated from the Indus Valley Sites (2500 BCE) includes sculptures, seals, potteries, Jewelleries etc.
- Besides it, the structures built during that time show the architectural prowess of the builders of ancient civilization in parts of North and North-western India.
- The city planning was based on Urban model which include the rectangular grid pattern of towns with roads cutting each other at right angle.
- Besides it, the building of granaries, Great Bath and Citadel (upper-raised town) exemplify the careful consideration of architecture for various purposes.

Site (IVC)	Archaeological Findings
1. Harappa (Pakistan : on the bank of Ravi River)	• Stone symbol of lingam and yoni • 2 Rows of six granaries • Sculpture of Mother-goddess • A wooden mortar containing wheat and Barley • A male torso (red sand stone) • A Bronze sculpture- Dog chasing a deer • Coffin Burial
2. Mohenjo-daro (Pakistan : on the bank of Indus River)	• The Great Bath • A sculpture of bearded priest • Bronze statue of Dancing Girl (Tribhanga position) • Pashupati Seal - A yogi sitting cross-legged surrounded by Elephant and Tiger (left side), Rhinoceros and a Buffalo (right side) and 2 Deers below his seat • The Great Granary • Post Cremation Burial
3. Dholavira, Kutch (Gujarat)	• It was discovered by J.P. Joshi in 1967-68 • Inscription containing 10 large sized signs • A big water reservoir • Stadium, dams and embankments • Unique Water harnessing System • UNESCO World Heritage Site
4. Lothal (Gujarat) aka Manchester of Indus valley civilization	• Practice of Cremation • Objects chess, rice husk, fire altar, painted jar, terracotta figures of horse & ship. First man-made port • A dockyard, showing it was a site for naval trade • Objects for measuring angles of 45°, 90°, 180°. Chess playing game.
5. Rakhigarhi (Haryana) Largest IVC Site	• It is known as provincial capital of Indus Valley Civilization • Findings - terracotta bricks, cemetry, drains, granary
7. Surkotada (Gujarat)	• First remains of bones of an animal resembling Horse (disputed among archaeologists), beeds were also found
8. Balathal, Kalibangan (Rajasthan)	• Bones of camel • A bangle factory • Upper (citadel) & lower town, fire altar • Toy carts & other small objects
9. Kot Diji (Sindh, Pakistan)	• Sculptures of Bull & Mother Goddess

Site (IVC)	Archaeological Finding
10. Banawali (Haryana) (on the banks of dried plough Saraswati River)	• Only city with radial (pattern) and oval-shaped settlement • Objects founded - decorated bricks, barley grains, fire altars, lapiz lazuli, toy
11. Ropar (Punjab: on the Banks of Sutlej River)	• Unique Feature : A dog is buried with human oval pit burial • A Copper Axe • First site to be excavated after independence
12. Alamgirpur (Meerut, UP) (On the bank of Yamuna River) Eastern most site of IVC	Finding : • Broken blade of copper • Ceramic Items • Impression of cloth on a container
13. Chanhudaro (Pakistan) Lancashire of IVC, other site Kot Bala	• Only IVC site without a citadel • Bead making factory • Cosmetic items • earliest evidence of furnace
14. Mehrgarh (Pakistan)	• Early IVC site • Remains of pottery and various tools
15. Suktagandor (Pakistan) Western most site of IVC	• Clay Bangles have been found • Flint Blades • Stone Arrow Heads
16. Balu (Haryana)	• Earliest evidence of Garlic in IVC besides other plant remains • other site-Kunal (Haryana)
17. Daimabad (Maharashtra) (Southern-most site of IVC)	• Bronze chariot besides other Bronze objects
18. Manda (Jammu & Kashmir) Northern-most site	• Potsherds bearing incised Harappan script and one unfinished seal
19. Sites in Gujarat	• Kerala-no-dhoro (centre of salt production) • Desalpur • Rangpur • Shikarpur • Pubimath

Harappan Pottery

Plain Pottery
- With any decorated patterns and colours
- Use for Household purposes - for storing grain and water
- Some of them perforated (for straining liquid)

Painted Pottery
- Red and Black Pottery
- Background - Red colour
- Designs/shapes - Black colour (glossy)
- Figures of paint - Trees, Birds, Geometrical shapes and other animals
- Some pots are poly chromated (use of multiple colours)
- Use for decorative purposes

Mauryan Art and Architecture

- The Mauryan art and architecture were heavily influenced by Buddhism and Jainism.
- The Mauryan Kings undertook the task of building colossal palaces, stupas and pillars. Besides it, the pottery, sculpture making and cave paintings were done with the help of individual efforts.

Mauryan Art
- Court Art (Court Initiative) → Palaces, Pillars, Stupas
- Popular Art (Individual Initiative) → Caves, Pottery, Sculptures

Mauryan Period-Popular Art – Individual Efforts

Cave Architecture	• Early caves were used by Ajivika sect later developed as Buddhist monastries Rock Cut Caves (Buddhism & Jainism) • Viharas (living quarters of Jain & Buddhist monks) • Chaityas (Place of worship) • Ex. Barabar & Nagarjuni caves, Bihar- • Nasik caves/Pandav Leni - Group of 24 Buddhist caves (1st BC - 3rd AD) belonging to Hinayana (old) sect of Buddhism
Sculptures	• The sculptures were made of stones which were primarily used in the decoration of Stupas (Torana & Medhi) • The sculptures of Yaksha & Yakshi (dieties of worship) were famous during Mauryan period. • These sculptures belonged to all three religions - Hinduism, Jainism and Buddhism
Pottery	• Use of Northern Black Polished Ware (NBPW) Pottery - Highest level of Pottery • It was marked by the use of glossy black paint

Court Art - Undertook by Mauryan Kings

Architecture	Features
Palaces	• Colossal Ashokan palace at Kumrahar (Pataliputra/Patna) • Palace of Chandragupta Maurya resembles with palaces built by Achaemenian ruler of Iran • Palace walls were decorated with sculptures and carvings • Wood was used as a principal material for building • Megasthenes described the Palace as - Greatest creation of Mankind
Pillars	• Gained prominence during Ashoka's times • Pillars were commemorative symbols for victories in battles besides serving as symbol of state authority and delivering sermons of the king through inscriptions Features of Mauryan Pillar • Height - 40 ft. • Building Material - Chunar Sandstone • Ex- Lauria Nandangarh (Champaran, Bihar - Sarnath Pillar (Varanasi)
Stupas (Burial mounds to keep relies)	• Around 84,000 stupas were built during Ashoka's reign • Around 9 stupas at (Rajagriha, Vaishali, Kapilavastu) Allakappa, Ramagrama, Vethapida, Pava, Kushinagar & Pippalivana) were built after the death of Buddha. Note: Sanchi Stupa M.P (UNESCO World Heritage Site) Piprahwa Stupa (oldest), UP.

Minor Pillar Inscriptions

- Rummindei Pillar Inscriptions - Ashoka's visit to Lumbini.
- Girnar Rock Inscription of Rudradaman : Mention the construction of Sudarshan Lake by Pushyagupta.
- Nigalisagar Pillar Inscription (Nepal) : Mentions Ashoka Increased the height of to stupa of Buddha.

Major Pillar Inscriptions

- Sarnath Lion capital : Varanasi (Commemoration of Dharmmachakrapravartana).
- Vaishali : Bihar • Sankissa Pillar : UP
- Lauriya Nandangarh : Champaran, Bihar

Post-Mauryan Art

- There was a revival of Brahmanism (Shaivism, Vaishnavaism, Shakti Cult) in the post-Mauryan period which was also reflected in the development of art forms.
- Though the Buddhist and Jain elements of architecture continued to develop but with added improvisation over subsequent periods. Apart from the architecture, the art of sculpture making reached its zenith during the post Mauryan period.

Post-Mauryan Art
- Architecture → Rock-cut caves, Stupas
- Sculpture → Gandhara School, Mathura School, Amravati School

Architecture

- The Architectural style underwent many changes during the post Mauryan period. The successive dynasties such as Shungas, Kanvas, Kushanas, Shakas, Satvahanas etc added newer elements in the existing design of buildings.

Rock Cut Caves

- There was a further development of the Chaityas (Prayer Halls) and Viharas(Residential Quarters). The caves had open courtyard, flat roofs and stone walls which were decorated with animal and human figures.

Ex: Karle Chaitya Hall, Ajanta Caves (Maharashtra).

- The other famous example of Rock-Cut Caves is Udayagiri Caves (18 caves) and Khandagiri Caves (15 Caves) made by Kharavela King of Kalinga (Bhubaneshwar) in Odisha somewhere between 1st-2nd century BC. These Caves were probably carved out as the residential place of Jain Monks.
- The Hathigumpha Inscription (Brahmi script) of Kharavela is inscribed on one of the Udayagiri Caves.

Stupas

- The use of wood and brick were replaced by Stone as a building material in the Stupas. Further, they became more enlarged and decorative, especially the gateways (Toranas) which were heavily influenced by Greek (Hellenistic) art such as the Bharhut Stupa of Madhya Pradesh.

Sculpture

- The art of Sculpture making was dominated by the following three schools of sculpture making.

Basis	Gandhara School	Mathura School	Amaravati School
External Influence	Heavy influence of Greek or Hellenistic sculpture, so it is also known as Indo-Greek art.	It was developed indigenously and not influenced of external cultures.	It was developed indigenously and not influenced by external cultures.
Ingredient Used	Early Gandhara School used bluish-grey sandstone while the later period saw the use of mud and stucco.	The sculptures of Mathura School were made using spotted red sandstone.	The sculptures of Amaravati School were made using white marbles.
Religious Influence	Mainly Buddhist imagers, influenced by the Greco-Roman pantheon.	Influence of all three religion of that time, i.e. Hinduism, jainism and Buddhism.	Mainly Buddhist influence.
Patronage	Patronised by Kushana rulers.	Patronised by Kushana rulers.	Patronised by Satvahana rulers.
Area of Development	Developed in the North-West Frontier, in the modern day area of Kandhar.	Developed in & around Mathura, Sonkh & Kankalitila. Kankalitila was famous for Jain sculptures.	Developed in the Krishna-Godavari lower valley, in and around Amaravati and Nagarjunakonda.
Features of Buddha Sculpture	The Buddha is shown in a spiritual state, with wavy hair. He wears fewer ornaments and seated in a yogi position. The eyes are half-closed as in meditation. A protuberance is shown on the head signifying the omniscience of Buddha.	Buddha is shown in delighted mood with a smiling face. The body symbolises mascularity, wearing tight dress. The face and head are shaven. Buddha is seated in padmasana with different mudras and his face reflects grace. A similar pro-tuberance is shown on the head.	Since the sculptures are generally part of a narrative art, there is less emphasis on the individual features of Buddha. The sculptures generally depict life stories of Buddha and Jataka tales, i.e., previous lives of Buddha in both human and animal form.

Gupta Age

- Though the early Gupta rulers were Buddhists by belief but the architectural style was during the Gupta age was heavily influenced by Brahmanism since the later Gupta rulers were Brahmanical Hindus.
- Three chief deities were worshipped during this time namely Vishnu (North& Central India), Shiva (South India) and Shakti (East and South-west India).
- Since the architectural style especially the Temple Architecture reached its zenith during this period, the Gupta Age is also known as the Golden Age of Indian Architecture.

Ajanta Caves (200 BC-650AD)

- A group of 29 Caves (25 Viharas & 4 Chaitya Halls) were inscribed by the Buddhist monks under the patronage of Vakataka kings especially Harishena, near Aurangabad in Maharashtra.
- Out of the 29 caves, the 5 belong to the Hinayana phase of Buddhism while 24 belong to the Mahayana phase of Buddhism.
- The caves use natural colours in fresco paintings with the outlines drawn with red colours. A remarkable feature of the Ajanta caves, is the absence of blue colour.

The Dying Princess, Cave No. 16, Ajanta Caves

Ellora Caves (5th AD-11th AD)

- A number of guilds from Karnataka, Tamil Nadu and Vidarbha region built a group of 34 Caves (17 Brahmanical, 12 Buddhist & 5 Jain Caves) at Aurangabad, Maharashtra.
- These caves show natural diversity in terms of architectural style. These caves are located on the slant slope of the mountains unlike the Ajanta caves which are on the stiff slope.
- These caves are marked by the presence of courtyard which are absent in the case of Ajanta Caves.

Pominent Caves

- Cave no. 10 – Vishwakarma
- Cave no. 14 – theme – Raavan Ki Khyai
- Cave no. 15 – Dashavatar Caves
- Cave no. 16 – Kailash Temple

Kailash temple built by Rashtrakuta king, is a monolith, structure with a courtyard

- 2 Jain Caves – Indra Sabha and Jagannath Sabha

Bagh Caves-6th Century AD

- They are group of 9 Buddhist Caves ,architecturally similar to the Ajanta Caves. They are located on the bank of the Baghani river in Madhya Pradesh caves were established by Budhist monk Dataka. Known for Engraved during Ashokan Period Mural Paintings.

Junagadh Caves

- The Junagadh caves of Gujarat were actually the three separate Buddhist monks' quarters carved out of stone.
- These caves are comprised of Upar Kot caves (30-50ft high raised platform), Khapra Ko diya Caves and Baba Pyare caves.

Nasik Caves/ Pandav Leni- 1st AD

- A group of 24 Buddhist caves aka Pandav Leni, belongs to the Hinyana sect of Buddhism. They are marked by the absence of Buddha's image, rather his presence is revered by Buddhist symbols and motifs.

Mandapeshwar/Montperir Caves- 8th AD

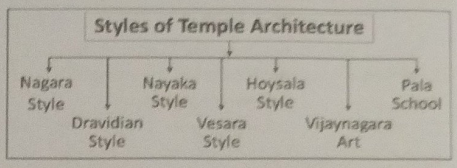
- These Caves belong to Brahmanical Hinduism located in Maharashtra. However, they were later converted into a Christian cave. Located on the bank of Dahisan River.
- Besides it, the Sarnath school of sculpture developed during this time. This school used coloured sandstone, metal and fully dressed Buddha with a decorative Halo around him.

Stupa and Sculpture during Gupta Period

Stupas- Despite the architectural brilliance of Dhamekh Stupa (Varanasi, UP), the development of Stupa saw decline during the Gupta period.

Sculptures- The 7.5 ft high Sultanganj Buddha (Bihar) is an example of excellent sculpture belonging to the Gupta period.

Temple Architecture in India



Nagara School of Architecture

- The Nagara School of Architecture developed around 5th century AD, predominantly in Northern India, followed by other regions including western, central and eastern India.

Nagar style of Architecture

Important Features of Nagara School

- The temples are built in Panchayatan style (Main shrine surrounded by four other subsidiary shrines).
- Panchayatana is an architectural style where the main shrine is built on a rectangular plinth with four smaller subsidiary shrines at the four corners and making it a total of five shrines – i.e., Pancha.
- Dashavatar Vishnu Temple of Deogarh, Uttar Pradesh built in the early 6th century CE of the late Gupta period is in the Panchayatana style of architecture
- Absence of any water tanks or reservoirs in the temple premises unlike South Indian temples. The temples are generally built on Jagati (upraised platform).
- The images of Ganga and Jamuna are present out garbhagriha (sanctum sanctorum).
- The mandapas (assembly halls) are located in front of the main shrine.
- The porticos are supported by the pillars. The pradakshina path (ambulatory passageway) was covered.
- There is a lack of elaborated boundary walls and gateways as in the case of Dravidian temples.
- The wall temples are generally classified into three vertical planes (Trirathas) which are used as panels to narrate Scriptures.

Stages of Temple Architecture in North India

First Stage	• Temples built on low platforms • They are square in shape with flat roof • Portico (covered entrance of a building) is supported by shallow pillars. • Ex. Temple No. 17 at Sanchi, Madhya Pradesh
Second Stage	• The Temples were built on higher (raised) platform • The development of covered pradakshina path (sanctum ambulatory passageway around garbha griha (sanctorum) • A few double-storied temple have also been there ex. Parvati Temple (Nachna Kuthar or MP)
Third Stage	• The flat roof of the temple were replaced by the Shikharas • The introduction of Panchayatan style (principle deity surrounded by four subsidiary shrines) in temples. • The main temple was still in square shape with rectangular shaped mandapa in front of it. Ex. Dashavatar Temple (Uttar Pradesh).
Fourth Stage	• All the features of temple architecture remained same except that main temple became rectangular in place of square. Ex. Ter Temple (Sholapur, Maharashtra).
Fifth Stage	• There was an addition of one more feature i.e. the idea of circular temple was introduced with rectangular projections. Ex. Maniyar Math (Rajgir, Bihar)

Sub-Schools of Nagara School of Architeture
Odisha School	• It was developed during the period of Kalinga Empire in Odisha. • The Sikharas were known as rekhadeuls (curved in words) while the mandapa were called Jagmohanas. • The pillar-supported portico were replaced by iron girders. • The exterior walls were lavishly decorated while the interior walls were plain. • The ground plan of temple is square, surrounded by a boudary wall. Ex. Lingaraj Temple (Bhubaneshwar), Sun Temple (Konark).
Khajuraho/ Chandela School (developed under Chandel rulers)	• The temples are primarly made of sandstone. • The interior and exterior walls are lavishly decorated with erotic sculptures influnced by Kama Sutra. • The temples are generally built on high platform, facing north or east side. • The subsidiary shrines has rekha-prasad types of shikharas. Ex. Kandariya Mahadev Temple, Lakshman Temple, Khajuraho.
Solanki School (developed under Solanki rulers in Gujarat)	• The porticos (roof covered entrances) have arched gateways - Torana • Presence of a step-tank (Surya Kund) near temple. • Most of them are east facing such that the sun-rays falls directly on central shrine during the equinoxes. • The garbhagriha is connected with mandapa (internally and externally). Ex. Modhera Temple, Gujarat.

- The Shikharas are classified in three main types: (I) Latina or Rekha Prasad (squared base with walls curving inwards to a point on top). (ii) Phamsana (slopes upwards in a straight line with broader base and shorter height) and (iii) Valabhi (rectangular base with wagon-like vaulted roofs).
- The Shikhara generally ended with a horizontal fluted disc known as the Amalak which itself was topped by a spherical shape Kalash.

Hill Temples

- A unique form of architecture developed in hills of Kumaon, Garhwal, Himachal and Kashmir.
- They depicted a strong Gandhara influence by the 5th century CE.
- Both Buddhist and Hindu traditions began to interminate and spread in the Hills.
- They had their own tradition of wooden building and pitched roofs.
- Karakota period of Kashmir is the most significant in terms of architecture.

Temple Architecture in South India

Dravidian Style of Temple Architecture

- The Dravidian style of temple architecture reached its zenith during the period of the Cholas.

Important features

- The temples are surrounded by high boundary walls.
- The entrances are marked by high gateways known as toranas.
- The Shikhara (temple spire) is known as the Vimana which is in the form of a linear stepped pyramid.
- There is an absence of vimanas on the subsidiary shrines unlike the Nagara style of temples.
- The Panchayatan style is also followed in South Indian temples.
- A tunnel like structure called antarala connects the assembly halls with the garbhagriha (main shrine).
- The entrance is generally marked by the sculptures of mithun and yakshas (dwaarpals).

Examples of Dravidian temple architecture include Brihadeshwara temple (1011 AD), Tanjore and Gangaikondacholapuram Temple.

- A special feature of Dravidian style temple is the presence of a water tank inside the temple enclosure.
- The crowning element (shape of an octagon, unlike spherical Kalash in North Indian temple) is known as the Shikhara in Dravidian temples.

Stages of Temple Architecture in South India
Mahendra Group (Stage I)	• The rock-cut temple were built under Mahendravarman marking the first stage of Pallava Temple architecture. • During this period, the temples were known as the Mandapas.
Narasimha Group (Stage II)	• It developed under Narasimhavarman of Pallava dynasty. • It became a precurror of Dravidian style of temple. • The rock-cut temples began to be decorated by sculptures. • The mandapas were further divide into rathas (Biggest Ratha : Dharamaraja Ratha & Smallest Ratha : Draupadi Ratha).
Rajasimha Group (Stage III)	• The rock cut temples were molded into structural temples under Rajasimhavarman of Pallava dynasty. Ex. Shore Temple (Mahabalipuram), Kailashnath Temple (Kanchipuram).
Nandi-varman Group (Stage IV)	• During the period of Nandivarman, the size of the temples became relatively smaller while retaining the rest of the features of a Dravidian temple. • Besides the Pallava architecture, newer forms such as Vesara style, Nayaka style and Vijayanagra style also developed in later periods.

Important Schools of Architecture
Nayaka/ Madurai School (16th-18th AD)	• The Nayaka rulers built Dravidian style of temples at Madurai. • The temples built under the Nayakas have the largest gopurams for ex. Meenakshi Temple (Madurai) has the tallest gopuram in the world. • The portico contains huge corridors (Prakarms) around the garbagriha besides covered passageways. • The temples have fine and intricate carvings.
Vesara School (650 AD) Karnataka	• It is the hybridised style of temple architecture, which combines the elements of both, Nagara and Dravida architecture. • It was developed under the Chalukya rulers. • It has open ambulatory passageways. • The prominent structures such as the pillars, doorways and roof have intricate carvings engraved on them. Ex. Ladkhan Temple, Aihole Temples at Badami.
Vijaynagara School (Hampi, Karnataka)	• There was an influence of Indo-Islamic style of Bijapur in the temples built during this period. • The gopurams were built on all the sides with enclosing walls. • There were multiple mandapas (assembly halls) and the central mandapa was known as the Kalyan Mandaps. • The wall temples were decorated with geometric patterns and carvings. • The temple premises began to be used for a few other non-religious purposes. Ex. Vittalaswami Temple, Lotus Maholi, Virupuksha Temple etc.
	• The temple's ground plan was laid out in star (stellate) plan instead of Panchayatan Style.
Hoysala Art (Belur, Halebid & Sringeri Karnataka-1050-1300 AD)	• The primary building material was soft soapstone. • All the chambers had interconnected shikharas. • Multiple shrines were built around a central pillared hall. • The walls & stairs follwed a zigzag pattern. • The temples were built on 1m high platform (Jagati). • The temple walls were intricatively carved with sculptures (inside & outside). Ex. Hoyasaleswara Temple (Halebid), Chennakeshwa temple at Belur and Somanathapura.
Pala School (Bengal : 8th-12th AD)	• The Pala and Sena dynasties patronised this school of architecture. • The architectural themes were Buddhist & Senas were Hindus. • The Bangla Roof (curved and sloping roof) is a prominent feature of this school which was later adopted by Mughals. The temples were crowned with large amalaka over a tall curving Shikhara. Terracotta brick was a building material. Ex. Siddesvara Mahadeva Temple.

Architecture in Medieval India

- The advent of Arabs in 8th century AD and the establishment of the Delhi Sultanate in the beginning of the 13th century, the Indian architecture saw the confluence of Islamic elements with the existing techniques of architecture. Consequently, this new style came to be known as the Indo- Islamic or Indo-Saracenic Architecture.
- The following are the newer elements and the basic features of this school of architecture:
- Introduction of arcuate style which is marked by the use of domes and arcs.
- Use of Minars or minarets (tall pillar-like structure) in architectural structures.
- Avoidance of any human forms or animal figures as the elements of decoration.
- Usage of mortar as the binding material in buildings.
- Introduction of spaciousness in the existing congested architecture.
- Use of pietra dura, calligraphy, geometrical patterns and arabesque method as the techniques of decoration on the buildings. Besides it, extensive Jaali work is also a feature of this school of architecture.
- Use of water in the premises of the buildings such as mosque and gardens is a special feature of this school.
- The use of geometrical design in architecture giving it a sense of symmetry.
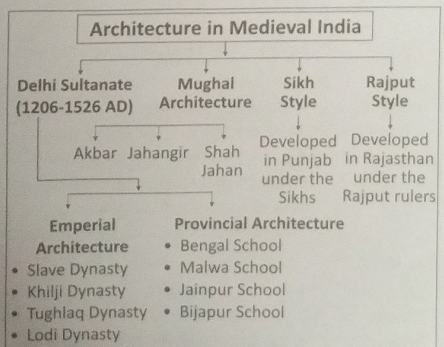
- Introduction of the Charbagh Style of Gardening (the central Square like block leading to four identical gardens on four sides).
- Use of fore sighting technique in architecture which implies that the carvings or inscriptions appear as the same size from any side.



Architecture during Delhi Sultanate (1206-1250 AD)

Slave Dynasty (1206-1290 AD)

- The Mamluk dynasty ruled Delhi between 1206-1290 AD.

- Qutub Minar: A five-storey minaret started by Qutubuddin Aibak by laying down ground floor while Iltutmish added the next three storeys followed by Feroz Shah Tughlaq adding the 5th storey.
  - Quwat -ul-Islam Mosque: It is located near Qutub Minar which was earlier a Jain temple.
  - Arhai-din ka Jhopra- It is a mosque built by Qutubuddin Aibak at Ajmer, Rajasthan.

Khilji Dynasty (1290-1320 AD)

- The Khiljis introduced the Seljuk style of architecture in India marked by the use of red sandstone, using mortar as a cementing material and overt use of Minars and arcs in the structures.

Some of the examples include: Alai Darwaza (southern gateway of Quwat ul Islam Mosque) built by Alauddin Khilji at Mehrauli, Delhi, Siri Fort at Delhi etc.

Tughlaq Dynasty (1320-1413 AD)

- The architecture during Tughlaq dynasty took a backseat. However, there were still some building projects undertaken by the Tughlaq rulers.
- Instead of using red sandstone as a building materials, they began to use grey sandstone while emphasising more on the strength and less on its decoration. For this purpose, the sloping walls were used to give more strength to the structure.
- The city of Tughlaqabad was built during this period.

Lodi Dynasty (1451-1526 AD)

- The diversity of architectural themes decline during the rule of Lodis. They only commissioned the building or tombs.
- A unique feature of Tomb building during the Lodi period was the construction of Double Tombs as to provide it more strength besides lowering the height of the inner structure.
- There was less attention paid to decoration of the tombs.

Examples : The city of Agra (by Sikandar Lodi) and the Lodi Gardens.

Provincial School of Architecture

Bengal School	• It was characterised by the use of black marbel and bricks. • The Bangla roofs were built in mosques which is a borrowing feature from Bangla Hidu Temples. Ex- Adina Mosque, Qadam Rasul Mosque.
Malwa School/ Pathan School	• It was pre-dominant in the cities of Mandu and Dhar in Madhya Pradesh. • There was a remarkable absence of minars, rather stairs were used to enhance beauty of the structure. • There was a use of different colours in stones and marbles with buildings having large windows and decorated by arcs and pillars. • The baulis (artificial reservoirs) were constructed in the premises. Further the locally available material was used for construction. Ex- Rani Roopmati Pavilion, Ashrafi Mahal & Jahaz Mahal.
Jaunpur School/ Sharqi Style	• It was patronised by Sharqi rulers of Jaunpur. • There was an absence of minars. • A prominent feature of the building structure painting of bold characters on central structure and sidebays of the prayer halls. Ex- Atala Mosque, Jaunpur (UP).
Bijapur School/ Deccan Style Gol Gumbaj	• The Adilshahi dynasty of Bijapur Patronised this school. • The domes in the buildings are large & bulbous besides using the 3-arched facade. The use of cornices was a special feature. • The mortar plaster & Iron clamp were used to provide strength to the structure as the ceilings were apparently without any support. Ex- Gol Gumbaj (mousoleum of Adil Shah).

Mughal Architecture

- Some of the Mughal rulers were great patrons of art and architecture.
- Babur, the founder of Mughal empire in India did not get much time to pay heed to architecture. However, he built a few mosques at Panipat and Rohilkhand.
- Similarly, Humayun also wasn't much interested towards art and architecture in the wake of power struggle. He laid down the foundation of a city called Dinpanah,though, he couldn't finished its building.
- Under the Afghan ruler, Sher Shah Suri undertook some of the building works such as Qila-e-Quhunah Mosque in Delhi, Rohtas Fort (Pakistan) and Sher Shah Suri Mosque at Patna, Bihar in Afghan Style.
- Besides it, Sher Shah Suri commissioned the re-construction of the Grand Trunk Road (Sadak-e-Azam).

The tomb of Sher Shah is built with red sandstone and is located at Sasaram (his birthplace), Bihar.

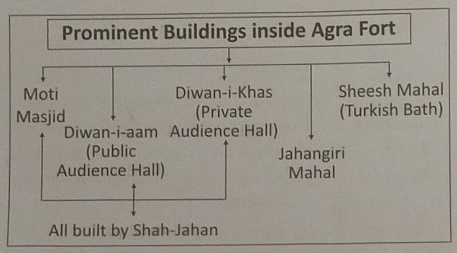
Akbar (1556-1605)

- The Mughal art and architecture reached to new heights during the reign of Akbar. Some of his architectural works and their features are mentioned below:
- Akbar is credited for introducing the Tudor or four-centred arch in the architecture. The red sandstone was the basic material used in the structures.



- The construction of these structures were undertaken by Akbar but most of these buildings were completed by Shah Jahan. Further, the Gardens were built in Charbagh Style.
- Akbar laid down the foundation of Fatehpur Sikri which shows the unique blend of Hindu and Islamic (Persian) elements. Some of the prominent buildings located in Fatehpur Sikri are as follows: Panch Mahal, Jodha Bai's Palace, Diwan-i-Khas, Buland Darwaza.
- Besides it, Akbar also built the temple of Govind Dev at Vrindavan, Mathura.

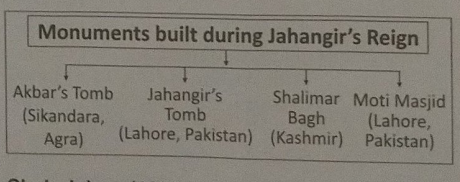
Jahangir

- Though the art of Mughal painting reached to its zenith during the reign of Jahangir but he was not much interested in building colossal structures.
- During his time, the white marble, as a building material, replaced the Redstone. For example, the tomb of Itmad-ud-daula (Noor Jahan's father) was the first Mughal structure to be made of white marble completely and it was beautifully decorated by intricate work of pietra dura.



Shah Jahan (1628-1658)

- Under the rule of Shah Jahan, the Mughal architecture reached to its climax as he undertook the construction of some of the brilliant monuments including the Taj Mahal for his wife Arzuman Bano Begum or Mumtaz Mahal.

- Besides these architectural works, he also excelled in metal works. Peacock Throne is an amazing specimen of such metal work.
- After Shah Jahan, none of the rulers could revive the Mughal architecture for example, the construction of architectural works reached to its low during the reign of Aurangzeb.
- Following him, Mughal emperor Muhammad Azam Shah (son of Aurangzeb) commissioned the construction of Bibi-ka-Maqbara in the memory of his mother Rabia Durani which is often compared as the poor imitation of the Taj Mahal. Besides it, he also built the Zeenat Mahal as a tribute to his wife.

Sikh Style

- The Sikh style of architecture also developed simultaneously with the Mughal style. As a result, it was influenced by the Mughal architecture. Some of the basic features of this style are:
- The building structure has multiple Chhatris (kiosks) over its top.
- The decoration was done using excessive metal work. The domes are covered by brass or copper guilds for support. They are further decorated with beautiful foliated arches.
- Oriel windows, bracked supported caves and Chhajja shallow cornicce : Golden Temple or Harmandir Sahib, Amritsar, Punjab which was started in 1585 and completed by Guru Arjan Dev in 1604.

Rajput Style

- The Rajput rulers also undertook some of the architectural works in and around Rajasthan. In terms of style, it was similar to Mughal architecture.
- The Rajput rulers used the concept of hanging balcony (without pillared support) in various shapes.
- Further, the shape of the arch casts a bow-shaped shadow at the ground.

Hawa Mahal at Jaipur is the finest example of hanging balconies.

Architecture in Modern India

- The Europeans such as the Portuguese, the French and the English brought their cultural elements with them including their own architectural style.
- Such architectural styles got mixed with the existing styles of architecture, giving rise to hybrid styles such as Indo- Gothic.
- The Portuguese brought the Iberian style of architecture which can be seen in St. Cathedral in Goa.
- Meanwhile, the French constructed the buildings based on Cartesian grid plan marked by scientific designs of architecture.

Examples include Church of Sacred Heart of Jesus (Puducherry).

- On the other hand, the British introduced the Gothic style in India which merged with the existing style to give rise to the Indo-Gothic style.
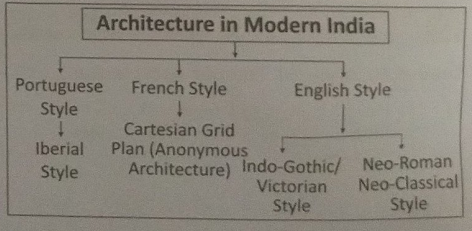
- Later on, the Classic or New Roman style was practised such as in the architectural design of New Delhi.



Features of Indo-Gothic/ Victorian Style

- It is the mixture of Indian, Persian and Gothic architectures.
- The architectural buildings are marked by large windows and pointed arches with relatively thinner walls than Indo-Islamic structures.
- The buildings were constructed by using materials such as steel, iron and concrete with advanced British techniques.
- The execution of these buildings are done on crucified ground plan with large and elaborate buildings.

For example: Victoria Memorial (Kolkata), Gateway of India.

Features of Neo-Roman Style

- The British government deployed the Neo-Roman or Neo- Classical style of architecture mainly in planning cities. For example, the architects Herbert Baker and Edwin Lutyens were called to design the architecture of New Delhi.
- The main features of the New- Roman style are:
- Since it was the hybridization of many styles, it ended up congesting up the earlier spacious design of building.
- There was an emphasis on circular buildings. The idea of simplicity was compromised and there was an overtly usage of motifs as in the case of Western style.

The concept of upturned dome was introduced during this time such as in the Rashtrapati Bhawan.

UNIT 8 UNESCO'S World Heritage Sites in India

- The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) declares the World Cultural Heritage Sites both in tangible and intangible forms for its outstanding universal value.
- UNESCO World Heritage Site is a place that is recognized by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). This is exemplified by the Convention regarding the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage, accepted by UNESCO in 1972.

Criteria for UNESCO World Heritage Sites

1. Human creative genius.
2. Interchange of values.
3. Testimony to cultural tradition.
4. Significance in human history.
5. Traditional human settlement.
6. Heritage associated with events of universal significance.
7. Natural phenomena or beauty.
8. Major stages of Earth's history.
9. Significant ecological and biological processes.
10. The significant natural habitat for biodiversity.

UNESCO list of Intangible Cultural Heritage Sites

- The UNESCO list of Intangible Cultural Heritage Sites are declared for traditions or living expressions inherited from ancestors and passed on to the descendants.
- These can be practices, representations, expressions, knowledge, skills, objects, artefacts, instruments and the communities associated with them.

UNESCO's Tentative list

- It is an inventory of properties which each state party intends to consider for nomination.
- As per Operational Guidelines, 2019 of UNESCO, it is mandatory to put any monument/site on the tentative list for one year before it is considered for the final nomination dossier. Once the nomination is done, it is sent to the World Heritage Centre (WHC).

India currently has 62 sites on the tentative list.

- In 2025, 6 sites were included in the UNESCO's Tentative list from India.

1. Kanger Valley National Park (Bastar, Chhattisgarh)

- Draws it's name from Kanger river
- Karst topography with limestone caves and Tirathgarh waterfalls.
- Home to endemic species like the Bastar Hill Myna.

2. Mudumal Megalithic Menhirs (Telangana)

- Ancient burial site featuring prehistoric megalithic structures dating back to Iron Age (1000 BCE – 300 CE), providing insights into early human settlements.
- Megalithic astronomical observatory site located near the banks of Krishna River, Telangana.
- A menhir is a man-made standing or an upright stone, which is usually tapered at the top.

3. Ashokan Edict Sites

- Ashokan Edict Sites along the Mauryan Routes estimated to be 3,500 to 4,000 years old that include Major Rock Edicts, Minor Rock Edicts, Pillar Edicts, and Other Edicts and Cave inscriptions commissioned by Emperor Ashoka.
- Spread across Bihar, Madhya Pradesh, Odisha, and Karnataka, reflecting Mauryan governance and Buddhist teachings.

4. Chausath Yogini Temples (Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh and Odisha)

- Circular temples housing 64 Yogini deities, known for their tantric significance.
- Most Chausath Yogini temples are circular in plan except for the Khajuraho, Badoh and Rikhiyan, which are rectangular.

5. Gupta Temples (Northern India)

- Represents classical Indian temple architecture from the Gupta period (4th–6th century CE), combining elements of Nagara and Dravida architectural styles and of Buddhist and Hindu styles.

- Temples had a basic square plan and flat roof with a circumambulatory path and a low height Shikhara, featuring intricate carvings, shikharas, and artistic excellence.
- Made of sun-dried bricks and terracotta, with some made in sandstone

6. Palace-Fortresses of the Bundelas (Madhya Pradesh & Uttar Pradesh)

- Medieval period Six forts including Garhkundar Fort, Raja Mahal, Jahangir Mahal, Datia Palace, Jhansi Fort and Dhubela Palace, built by the Bundela Rajputs
- Biend of Rajput and Mughal architectural styles

UNESCO Creative Cities Network

- It was created in 2004 to promote cooperation among cities which recognize creativity as a strategic factor in their urban development.
- The network covers 7 creative fields: crafts and folk arts, media arts, film, design, gastronomy, literature and music.

Indian Cities on UCCN (8)

- Gwalior - City of Music (2023)
- Kozhikode - City of Literature (2023)

- Chennai- Creative city of Music (2017).
- Jaipur- Crafts and Folk Arts (2015).
- Varanasi- Creative city of Music (2015).

UNESCO Global Network of Learning Cities

- Launched in 2013, it is an international policy based network to ensure the development of all learning cities by sharing ideas and arts with other cities
- 77 cities from 44 countries are included in it, of which 3 cities in India were added to it in 2022- Thrissur and Nilambur in Kerala and Warangal in Telangana.

UNIT 9 Indian Dance Forms

- The description of dance forms can be traced back to the Bharat Muni's Natya Shastra compiled around 2nd AD. He describes it as complete art which encompasses pathya (words) from Rig Veda, Abhinaya (gestures) from Yajur Veda, Geet (music) from Sam Veda and Rasa (emotions) from Atharva Veda.
- Besides it, there have been instances of community dancing in the paintings of Bhimbetka caves and the Bronze statue of a dancing girl from Harappan civilization.
- India has a rich and diverse tradition of various dance forms from the Classical dances to the folk dances of the general masses as a part time activity of entertainment.

Basic Aspects of Indian Classical Dance (As per Natya Shastra)

Lasya	Tandava
• Describes feminine features of dance. • Denotes Bhava, Rasa, Abhinaya	• Describes male aspects of dance. • Denotes vigrous movements on rhythm.

Basic Elements of Dance (As per Abhinaya Darpan of Nandikeshwara)

Nritta	Natya	Nritya
• Basic dance steps • Devoid of any expression	• Story telling through dance. • Performed through dramatic representations.	• Describe various mudras of Dance. • Performed through sentiments emotions.

Nine Rasas of Dance

Rasa/Emotion	Expresses
• Shringara	Love
• Veer	Heroism
• Roudra	Fury
• Karuna	Tragedy
• Bibhatsa	Disgust
• Bhayanak	Horror
• Adbhuta	Wonder
• Shaanta	Peace and tranquillity
• Haasya	Laughter and comedy

- Besides it, there are 108 fundamental Mudras (body postures and hand gestures) to describe a particular emotion.

Forms of Indian Dances

- The Indian dance forms are generally classified under the Indian Classical Dance Forms and Folk dances. The former are governed by the basic rules of Natya Shastra and the later does not adhere to any rules as such.

Indian Classical Dances

Eight Classical Dances of India

Bharatnatyam (Tamil Nadu)	Kuchipudi (Andhra Pradesh)	Kathakali (Kerala)	Mohiniattam (Kerala)
Kathak (Uttar Pradesh)	Sattriya (Assam)	Manipuri (Manipur)	Odissi (Odisha)

Bharatnatyam

- The word Bharata in Bharatnatyam refers to Bha-Bhava, Ra-Raga and Ta-Taal and the word Natyam means dance in Tamil language.

- It was traditionally performed by the Sadir (solo performance) of the temple dancers under the Devdasi system in Tamil Nadu, then it was referred to as Dashiattam.
- The Tanjore Quartet Cteacht : Chinnaiah, Ponniah, Vadivelu and Shivanandam took this dance form to the next level such that it came to be known as Tanjore Natyam under them.

Elements of Bharatnatyam (As per the Tanjore Quactet)

Alarippu	Jatiswaram	Shabdam	Varnam	Padam	Jawali	Thillana
Dance postures with rhythmic syllables	Pure form of dance	Performance/ Abhinaya in the glory of god	Mixture of dance and emotions with taal and raag	Mastery over performance (Abhinaya)	Lyrics performed by faster tempo	Concluding stage of dance accompanied by rhythmic variations & dance

Important Features of Bharatnatyam

- It is also known as the fire dance resembling a dancing flame.
- It puts equal emphasis on Lasya and Tandava.
- The most prominent Mudra (posture) is Kataka Mukha Hasta which symbolises Om through joining the three fingers.
- The Ekcharya Lasyam characterises the multiple roles played by a single performer.

Prominent dancers of Bharatnatyam: Rukmini Devi Arundale, Yamini Krishnamurthi, Padma Subramaniam, Mrinalini Sarabai etc.

Kuchipudi

- The Kuchipadi dance derives its name from Kusselavapuri village of Andhra Pradesh.
- The Vijayanagara and Golconda rulers patronised this dance form the dance is traditionally performed by male Brahmins while reciting the themes of Bhagavat Purana.

Important Features of Kuchipudi

- There is a predominance of Shringara rasa.
- In this dance form, a dancer can also sing along with performing drama. It combines the elements of both lasya and tandava.
- The principal performer introduces itself with a small composition of dance and song known as the Daaru.
- The solo elements of Kuchipadi dance are : Manduk Shabdam- tells the story of frog, Tarangam- putting the dancer's feet in brass plate while maintaining a water pot on head with a set of diyas and Jala Chitra Nrityam - drawing pictures on floor with his/ her toes.
- The song is played with the help of violin and mridangam accompanied by carnatic music.

Prominent Kuchipudi Dancers : Radha Reddy & Raja Reddy, Yamini Krishnamurthy etc.

Kathakali

- The word Kathakali combines two words Katha means story and Kali means drama. It is a traditional dance of Kerala which became a successive dance form of Ramanattam and Krishnattam.
- After its decline, the Malayalam poet V N Menon revived it under the patronage of Mukunda Raja.

Important Features of Kathakali

- The story tellings depicts the conflict between good and bad as narrated in the epics.
- The prominent feature of Kathakali dance is the depiction of expressions through different eye movements and eye brows and elaborate and colour make ups of the performers.
- The use of different colours signifies different things such as green shows nobility, red shows royalty and black shows evilness.
- The dance represents the elements of sky (ether) and it is generally performed in temple premises or open theatres.
- The beginning and end of Kathakali is marked by the sound of drum, chhenda and Maddala (instruments)

Prominent Kathakali dancers: Rita Ganguly, Gopi Nath, Kunchu Kurup etc.

Mohiniattam

General Information about Time Periods and Setting of Calendars

- The Calenders are mostly based on either Solar system, Lunar system or Luni-solar system.
- Calendar based on Solar system- The calendar based on solar system is synchronized with the amount of time the earth takes to complete one revolution around the sun i.e. in 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds roughly making a solar Year (Gregorian calendar) which is further divided into twelve months corresponding the change in seasons.
- According the extra 6 hours are left every year for the sake of convenience which are later added in four years to add the complete one day (366 days) in the Leap Year.
- Lunar Year- The Lunar Year follows the movement (revolution) of the Moon around planet earth which is roughly completed in 29.26-29.80 days making it a month. Such 12 months make a one lunar year just like the solar year.
- However, the Lunar year is consisted of 354 days hence there is a difference of 11 days between a solar year and a lunar year. This difference of 11 days is adjusted after every 2 years, 6 months in the lunar year for the purpose of better synchronization with the solar year. This one extra month is called Adhik Masa.

Solar and Lunar Months in India

- Solar Month- The 12 Solar months are named after Rashis/ Zodiac Signs or mansions in India.
- Lunar Month- The Lunar month is divided into two parts/fortnights or Pakshas which are Shukla Paksha- (The new moon or the Bright half for roughly 14-15 days) Krishna Paksha- The second fortnight marking the 14-15 days of dark period of the moon.
- The Lunar month either ends with Amavasya (new moon) or Purnima (full moon).
- The Lunar day (tithi or Vasara- 23 hours and 37 minutes) is further divided into Ghatika (24 minutes), Pala (60 vipalas or 24 seconds) and Vipalas. The two Ghatikas together make one Muhurat which is 2 hours.

Hindu Calendar/ Panchanga

- The Hindu Calendar or Panchanga comprises of Five Angas or limbs which are Tithi, Vaara, Nakshatra (28 in number), Yoga and Karana.
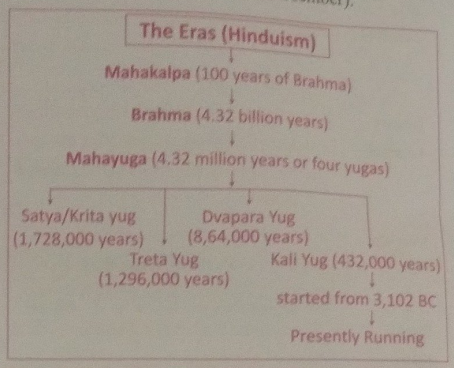
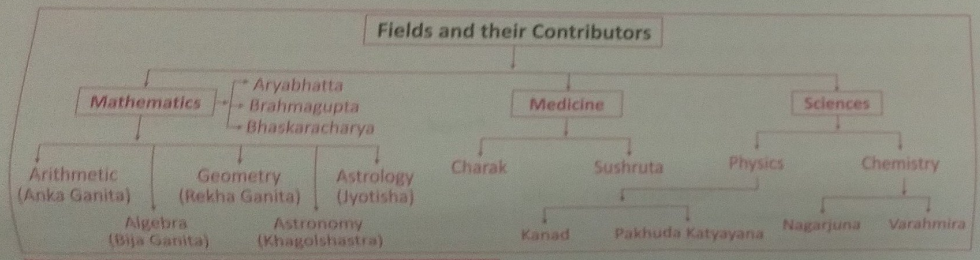
- As per the Hindu Calendar, the solar year is divided in two halves which are Uttarayana (the initial six months from January to June and Dakshinayana the last six months from July to December).



UNIT 15 Science and Technology through the Ages

Introduction

- India has inherited a rich legacy of intellectual sciences especially in the fields of astronomy, medicine, mathematics, geometry of physics, chemistry etc.
- The contribution of persons such as Aryabhatta, Bhaskaracharya, Charak etc is remarkable in their respective domains. Besides it, the possession of precision knowledge in their respective areas is reflected in their works.
- Apart from this, the art and science of metallurgy, ship building and navigation, smelting, heliocentric theory, plastic surgery, theory of atom, Algorithm system etc were known to some of the Indians in Ancient India.



Mathematics

- Many of the fields or areas within Mathematics evolved over a period of time in India. Nevertheless, the decimal system, the idea of Algebra and concept of zero probably originated from India.
- During the ancient times, a number of Mathematicians have authored various works or treatises on different concepts of mathematics.

The word Mathematics or Ganita encompasses various sub branches such as Anka Ganita (Arithmetic), Bija Ganita (Algebra), Rekha Ganita (Geometry), Khagol Shastra (Astronomy) and Jyotisha (Astrology).

- He introduced the Indian medicine system i.e. Ayurveda.
- According to him, the science of Ayurveda has the following 8 components or aspects:

- Besides it, Charak talks about the imbalance in the functioning of human body due to the disturbance in the three Doshas which are Bile, Phlegm and Wind.
- Further, medicines are prescribed for restoring the imbalance among any of these three Doshas.

Sushruta

- Sushruta is highly regarded as the great surgeon of Ancient India. In his book Sushruta Samhita, he talks about the science of surgery, specializing in Plastic surgery & ejection of cataract in the eyes.
- He had extensive knowledge about human body and its anatomy and childbirth (obstetrics).

The Charak Samhita lists down the steps of surgery especially Plastic surgery termed as Sastrakarma during those days.

- It also mentions about the surgical tools used in the restoration of a mutilated nose as part of rhinoplasty (plastic surgery).
- Thereafter, the system of Ayurveda reached to different parts of the world through travellers such as Buddhist monks, Indo - Greeks, Arabs etc.
- During the medieval era, a number of treatises were written dealing with different aspects of medicine. For example, a 13th century text Sarangdhara Samhita deals with the medicinal properties of opium.
- Apart from this, there has been description of the usefulness of many mineral medicine as part of the Rasachikitsa system.
- While the Greeks introduced the alternate system of Medicine called Unani through a book called Firdausu'l Hikmat (Paradise of wisdom) by Ali-ibn-Rabban.

Sciences

- The word Science encompasses many a number of disciplines sometimes inter-related. The sciences of Physics and Chemistry are two of them.
- During ancient and medieval India, the experimental scientists were aware of the art of smelting metals, rudimentary understanding of the atomic theory, casting of canons, making of gunpowder etc.

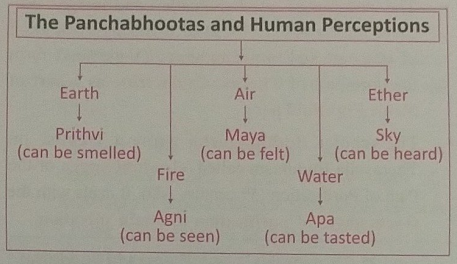
Physics

- The philosophers such as Kanada or Kashyapa and Pakudha Kaccayana during 6th BC conceived the rudimentary understanding of the atomic theory and the material/substances which constitute an atom.
- Further, Kanada attempted to explain that the entire world is made up of indestructible atoms called parmanu which can not be further subdivided. Thus, they were aware of the idea of splitting an atom.
- Apart from this, the ancient philosophers perceived the material to be comprised of the following five elements which can be perceived by human senses of perception :



Chemistry

- During ancient India, Chemistry was known as Rasayan Shastra or science of mixing liquids.
- One such prominent Alchemist or metallurgist was Nagarjuna (born:Gujarat, 9310 AD) who was belived to possess a quality of changing the base metals into gold. Apart from this, he was known to the art of preparing elixir from mercury by using dyes from vegetable and animal products.
- Though, the changing of base metals into gold is not possible however, his method is useful in converting the metals into a yellow-like substance which has an application of making a gold-like products including jewellery.
- Another text called Rasaratnakara talks about mixing of liquids especially mercury and different aspects of metallurgy and alchemy.
- During the Bronze and Iron ages, the development of metal smelting, extraction of metal from ores, metal casting and mixing took place. The best known examples are Sultanganj (Bihar) idol of Buddha and Iron Pillar of Mehrauli (Delhi) are examples of metal casting brilliance such that they have not caught rust since their manufacturing, thousands of years ago.
- Varahmihira (During the Gupta period) was a known geologist, hydrologist, astrologer, and ecologist who proved that presence of termites in a thing indicates the availability of moisture thus the presence of water. He authored a book called Brihat Samhita in which he attempted to explain the phenomena of earthquake with the interconnection through the influence of plants, underground water and undersea activities, behavior of animals, differential cloud formation etc. The king Vikramaditya gave him the title of Varaha.

The 12th century Sanskrit text called Rasarnava deals with tantric principles related to alchemy.

- The mixing of sulphur, charcoal and saltpetre was used as a process to make gunpowder on a large scale especially in warfare with the advent of Mughals. Further, Babur's autobiography Tuzuk-i-Baburi mentions about the art of casting canons.
- The paper making was an important industrial activities and the centres like Murshidabad, Kashmir, Patna, Ahmedabad, Mysore, Aurangabad etc were famous for making paper.

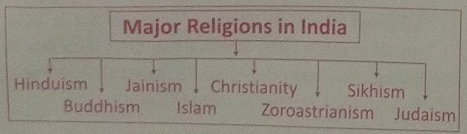
UNIT 16 Major Religions of India

Introduction

- India is one of the largest religiously plural country which has all the people belonging to major religions of the world.
- India managed to maintain religious diversity due to its very nature of universal acceptance and tolerance. Thus, a number of diverse communities are peacefully coexisting with one another for centuries in India.



Hinduism

- Hinduism as a belief system encompasses many cults and sects within it thus making it religiously heterogeneous.
- Around 80% of Indians are Hindus in India making it one of the largest community not just in India but around the world.
- In terms of number of followers, it is the third largest religion of the world.
- However, the term Hindu did not refer to the adherents of any particular religion initially, since it was more of a geographical identity (derived from the word Sindhu: People living around the Indus river).
- The Hinduism derives the principles of social order including way of life and moral philosophies from the Vedic Literature including the four Vedas, Brahamanas, Arayankas, Upanishads etc.
- The Upanishads specify four stages of life: Brahmachari (student life), Grihasta (householder), Vanaprastha (a hermit) and finally Sanyasi (an ascetic) to achieve moksha or liberation.
- As per the Hindu traditions, Dharma (righteousness) is essential while striving for artha (materialistic life) and Kama (pleasure).
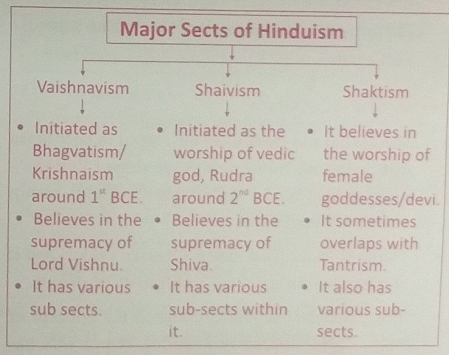
- Besides these three major sects of Hinduism, there are Communities which believe in Nirguna (god without attributes) and Saguna (god with attributes). They worship five major deities : Shiva, Ganesh, Vishnu, Surya and Shakti.
- There are three major Sects of Hinduism which can be described as follows:



Prominent Sects under Vaishnavism
• Ramanandi Sect	• The saint Ramananda (proponent of Advaita philosophy). • The followers of this sect known as Ramanandi/Vairagis worship Lord Rama as the incamation of Vishnu. They are mostly based in North India. • It has two sub-groups called Tyagis and Nagar.
• Varkari Panth	• They worship Vithoba as the form of Lord Vishnu. • The Varkaris (followers) hold annual pilgrimage from Sanadhi to Pandharpur in Maharashtra. • The saints such as Jnaneshwar (13rd century), Namdev (13th-14th century), Eknath (16th century), Tukaram (16th-17th century) belonged to this sect.
• Pushti Marg Sect	• The saint Vallabhacharya founded this sect in 1500. • The followers of this sect believes in the ultimate devotion to Lord Krishna.
• Brahma Sect	• The saint Madhavacharya found this sect. Later on Chaitanya Prabhu founded its sub-sect Gaudiya-Vaishnavi. • They worship and devote themselves to Lord Krishna. • The ISKCON followers belong to this sect.
• Nimbarka Sect/Hamsa/ Kumara Sampradaya	• They worship Krishna and Radha as the Supreme God and goddess respectively.

Prominent Sects under Shaivism
• Lingayatism/ Veerashaivism	• The 12th century Kannada poet Basava/ Basavanna initiated this sect. It is centred around the sole worship of Shiva which essentially makes it monotheistic. It rejected the authority of the Vedas and Caste system altogether. The followers of Shiva wear a linga.
• Aghoris	• The Aghori Babas or Sadhus are ardent worshipers of Lord Shiva who manifest themselves as Bhairavas. They practice extreme form of penance by controlling their sense organs and other bodily functions. Due to their lifestyle, most of the Aghoris live outside of the main Hindu society and are concentrated in parts of Uttar Pradesh.
• Siddhas	• The Siddhas are mystics/saints who are largely concentrated in Tamil Nadu. They perform prolong meditation and said to have attained the special eight powers through meditation. They are also credited to found a new form of martial art called Varnam.
• Nathpanthi	• The Nathpanthis are the followers of Gorakhnath and Matsyendranath. They are mostly wanderers who live the life of a monk such as covering themselves with ashes, wearing dhotis and dreaded hair locks. They practice Hatha Yoga as part of the meditation to transform their bodies. They worship Adinath, a form of Shiva.
• Dashnami Sanyasis	• They are the followers of Adi Shankaracharya who are further classified into 10 groups. They believe in the philosophy of Advaita Vedanta propagated by Adi Shankaracharya.
